

CITY DESK

I LIKE CATS, NOT DOGS

THE QUIET CHOICE IS A WINDOW LEDGE.

On the east pier, the morning starts with gulls, coffee, and the sound of a key turning in a shop door. The harbor is ordinary only until someone pays attention.

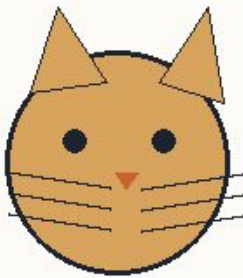

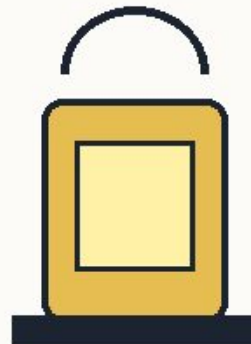

ILLUSTRATION: a patient observer waits for the sun to cross the sill.

RIVER NOTES

THE LONG WAY HOME

A ferry operator keeps a folded map under the radio. The last crossing leaves when the river turns copper.

The document's first fact belongs directly below its own heading, not in the neighboring column.

ARCHIVE INSERT

FIELD NOTES

SABLE-14
A marker found under the old ticket booth.

MORROW-62
A tide notation entered after first light.

VIOLET-08
A receipt folded into the weather log.

ADVERTISEMENT

KEEP YOUR LANTERN LIT

CANARY-91
Replacement wicks, packed by noon.

JUNIPER-31
Brass polish for storm-worn handles.

EMBER-77
A spare globe for the next crossing.

COLUMN ONE
These three codes are ordered from top to bottom.

MUSEUM DESK

THE LOST ARCHIVE

A blue notice was discovered behind a framed shipping schedule. Its lettering has not been transcribed into the article.

CLIP FILE

A curator reports the notice has a blue field and a single filing code. The small type is a handling instruction.

